Department / Division Specific unit / Sub department UCL Organisational and Staff Development Team Grade 10 Hours Full Time E65,000 (more may be available for an exceptional candidate) plus final-salery pension scheme University College London (UCL) a world class institution, currently tranked fourth in the Times Higher Education world university ranking, employs an exceptional array of talented individuals, responsible for our global reputation for academic excellence. With exciting academic developments and a clear modernisation agenda we aim to ensure we remain competitive in the global arena. The HR team leads many aspects of UCL's change programme and plays a key role in its organisational development. Key Requirements An exciting opportunity has arisen for an experienced Organisation and staff development professional, to work with the Assistant HR Director - Consultancy and OSD, to review, develop and implement HR and OD strategies that will support UCL's corporate agenda. Building on excellent staff development provision to date, a review is underway to refocus the service to implement organisation development support within faculties and departments, aligned to the business partner model. This is a highly influential role central to the way in which we develop our best asset — our leaders and staff. You will have a track record of leading successful strategic staff development projects including organisation development projects i			_
Hours Full Time Salary (inclusive of London allowance) Duties and Responsibilities University College London (UCL) a world class institution, currently ranked fourth in the Times Higher Education world university ranking, employs an exceptional array of talented individuals, responsible for our global reputation for academic excellence. With exciting academic developments and a clear modernisation agenda we aim to ensure we remain competitive in the global arena. The HR team leads many aspects of UCL's change programme and plays a key role in its organisational development. Key Requirements An exciting opportunity has arisen for an experienced Organisation and staff development professional, to work with the Assistant HR Director - Consultancy and OSD, to review, develop and implement HR and OD strategies that will support UCL's corporate agenda. Building on excellent staff development provision to date, a review is underway to refocus the service to implement organisation development support within faculties and departments, aligned to the business partner model. This is a highly influential role central to the way in which we develop our best asset – our leaders and staff. You will have a track record of leading successful strategic staff development projects including organisation development projects including organisation development initiatives and leadership and management programmes. You will have outstanding interpersonal skills which will enable you to establish immediate credibility with senior managers and strong analytical and problem solving skills, which will enable got to establish immediate production sector and how these impact on the staff and OD agenda. Further Details To apply for the vacancy please click on the 'Apply Now' button below. For more information about this opportunity please go to http://www.ucl.ac.uk/hr/vacancles /consultancy/ If you would like to discuss this opportunity please contact Maria Pritchard on maria.pritchard@ucl.ac.uk		L Human Resources Division	Appl
Full Time Salary £65.000 (more may be available for an exceptional candidate) plass final salary pension scheme Dutles and Responsibilities University College London (UCL) a world class institution, currently ranked fourth in the Times Higher Education world university ranking, employs an exceptional array of talented individuals, responsible for our global reputation for academic excellence. With exciting academic developments and a clear modernisation agenda we aim to ensure we remain competitive in the global arena. The HR team leads many aspects of UCL's change programme and plays a key role in its organisational development. Key Requirements An exciting opportunity has arisen for an experienced Organisation and staff development professional, to work with the Assistant HR Director - Consultancy and OSD, to review, develop and implement HR and OD strategies that will support UCL's corporate agenda. Building on excellent staff development provision to date, a review is underway to refocus the service to implement organisation development support within faculties and departments, aligned to the business partner model. This is a highly influential role central to the way in which we develop our best asset — our leaders and staff. You will have a track record of leading successful strategic staff development projects including organisation development projects including organisation development initiatives and leadership and management programmes. You will have outstanding interpersonal skills which will enable you to establish immediate credibility with senior managers and storong analytical and problem solving skills, which will underpin a strong track record of influencing change at all levels. You will be familiar with issues facing the Higher Education sector and how these impact on the staff and OD agenda. Further Details To apply for the vacancy please click on the 'Apply Now' button below. For more information about this opportunity please contact Maria Pritchard on maria, pritchard@ucl.ac.uk		-
Salary (inclusive of London allowance) Dutles and Responsibilities University College London (UCL) a world class institution, currently ranked fourth in the Times Higher Education world university ranking, employs an exceptional array of talented individuals, responsible for our global reputation for academic excellence. With exciting academic developments and a clear modernisation agenda we aim to ensure we remain competitive in the global arena. The HR team leads many aspects of UCL's change programme and plays a key role in its organisational development. Key Requirements An exciting opportunity has arisen for an experienced Organisation and staff development professional, to work with the Assistant HR Director - Consultancy and OSD, to review, develop and implement HR and OD strategies that will support UCL's corporate agenda. Building on excellent staff development provision to date, a review is underway to refocus the service to implement organisation development support within faculties and departments, aligned to the business partner model. This is a highly influential role central to the way in which we develop our best asset – our leaders and staff. You will have a track record of leading successful strategic staff development projects including organisation development initiatives and leadership and management programmes. You will have outstanding interpersonal skills which will enable you to establish immediate credibility with senior managers and storong analytical and problem solving skills, which will underpin a strong track record of influencing change at all levels. You will be familiar with issues facing the Higher Education sector and how these impact on the staff and OD agenda. Further Details To apply for the vacancy please click on the 'Apply Now' button below. For more information about this opportunity please go to http://www.ucl.ac.uk/hr/vacancles/consultancy/. If you would like to discuss this opportunity please contact Maria Pritchard on maria, pritchard@ucl.ac.uk	10	·
Cinclusive of London allowance) Duties and Responsibilities University College London (UCL) a world class institution, currently ranked fourth in the Times Higher Education world university ranking, employs an exceptional array of talented individuals, responsible for our global reputation for academic excellence. With exciting academic developments and a clear modernisation agenda we aim to ensure we remain competitive in the global arena. The HR team leads many aspects of UCL's change programme and plays a key role in its organisational development. Key Requirements An exciting opportunity has arisen for an experienced Organisation and staff development professional, to work with the Assistant HR Director - Consultancy and OSD, to review, develop and implement HR and OD strategies that will support UCL's corporate agenda. Building on excellent staff development provision to date, a review is underway to refocus the service to implement organisation development support within faculties and departments, aligned to the business partner model. This is a highly influential role central to the way in which we develop our best asset — our leaders and staff. You will have a track record of leading successful strategic staff development projects including organisation development projects including organisation development initiatives and leadership and management programmes. You will have outstanding interpersonal skills which will enable you to establish immediate credibility with serior managers and strong analytical and problem solving skills, which will underpin a strong track record of influencing change at all levels, You will be familiar with issues facing the Higher Education sector and how these impact on the staff and OD agenda. Further Details To apply for the vacancy please click on the 'Apply Now' button below. For more information about this opportunity please go to http://www.ucl.ac.uk/hr/vacancies/consultancy/ If you would like to discuss this opportunity please contact Maria Pritchard on mari	Fu	Il Time institution, currently ranked fourth in the Times Higher Education world university ranking, employs an exceptional array of talented individuals, responsible for our global reputation for academic excellence. With exciting academic developments and a clear modernisation agenda we aim to ensure we remain competitive in the global arena. The HR team leads many aspects of UCL's change programme and plays a key role in its organisational development. Key Requirements An exciting opportunity has arisen for an experienced Organisation and staff development professional, to work with the Assistant HR Director - Consultancy and OSD, to review, develop and implement HR and OD strategies that will support UCL's corporate agenda. Building on excellent staff development provision to date, a review is underway to refocus the service to implement organisation development support within faculties and departments, aligned to the business partner model. This is a highly influential role central to the way in which we develop our best asset – our leaders and staff. You will have a track record of leading successful strategic staff development projects including organisation development intilatives and leadership and management programmes. You will have outstanding interpersonal skills which will enable you to establish immediate credibility with senior managers and strong analytical and problem solving skills, which will underpin a strong track record of influencing change at all levels. You will be familiar with issues facing the Higher Education sector and how these impact on the staff and O
Organisation and staff development professional, to work with the Assistant HR Director - Consultancy and OSD, to review, develop and implement HR and OD strategies that will support UCL's corporate agenda. Building on excellent staff development provision to date, a review is underway to refocus the service to implement organisation development support within faculties and departments, aligned to the business partner model. This is a highly influential role central to the way in which we develop our best asset — our leaders and staff. You will have a track record of leading successful strategic staff development projects including organisation development initiatives and leadership and management programmes. You will have outstanding interpersonal skills which will enable you to establish immediate credibility with senior managers and strong analytical and problem solving skills, which will underpin a strong track record of influencing change at all levels. You will be familiar with issues facing the Higher Education sector and how these impact on the staff and OD agenda. Further Details To apply for the vacancy please click on the 'Apply Now' button below. For more information about this opportunity please go to http://www.ucl.ac.uk/hr/vacancies/consultancy/ If you would like to discuss this opportunity please contact Maria Pritchard on maria.pritchard@ucl.ac.uk	ins Ec ex fo W m cc m	stitution, currently ranked fourth in the Times Higher ducation world university ranking, employs an acceptional array of talented individuals, responsible r our global reputation for academic excellence. With exciting academic developments and a clear odernisation agenda we aim to ensure we remain ompetitive in the global arena. The HR team leads any aspects of UCL's change programme and which we develop our best asset – our leaders and staff. You will have a track record of leading successful strategic staff development projects including organisation development projects including organisation development initiatives and leadership and management programmes. You will have outstanding interpersonal skills which will enable you to establish immediate credibility with senior managers and strong analytical and problem solving skills, which will underpin a strong track record of influencing change at all levels. You will be familiar with issues facing the Higher Education sector and how these impact on the staff and OD agenda. Further Details To apply for the vacancy please click on the 'Apply Now' button below. For more information about this opportunity please go to http://www.ucl.ac.uk/hr/vacancies/consultancy/ If you would like to discuss this opportunity please contact Maria Pritchard on maria.pritchard@ucl.ac.uk We particularly welcome female applicants and those from an ethnic minority, as they are under-represe within UCL at these levels. This is in line with section 48 of the Sex Discrimination Act and section 38 of the Relations Act.	Key Requirements	rganisation and staff development professional, to ork with the Assistant HR Director - Consultancy and OSD, to review, develop and implement HR and D strategies that will support UCL's corporate genda. Building on excellent staff development ovision to date, a review is underway to refocus e service to implement organisation development upport within faculties and departments, aligned to
To apply for the vacancy please click on the 'Apply Now' button below. For more information about this opportunity please go to		hich we develop our best asset – our leaders and aff. You will have a track record of leading accessful strategic staff development projects cluding organisation development initiatives and adership and management programmes. You will ave outstanding interpersonal skills which will enable but to establish immediate credibility with senior anagers and strong analytical and problem solving kills, which will underpin a strong track record of fluencing change at all levels. You will be familiar ith issues facing the Higher Education sector and
Now' button below. For more information about this opportunity please go to http://www.ucl.ac.uk/hr/vacancies/consultancy/ If you would like to discuss this opportunity please contact Maria Pritchard on maria.pritchard@ucl.ac.uk We particularly welcome female applicants and those from an ethnic minority, as they are under-representation UCL at these levels. This is in line with section 48 of the Sex Discrimination Act and section 38 of the Relations Act.		annly for the vacancy please click on the 'Annly go to http://www.ucl.ac.uk/hr/vacancies /consultancy/ If you would like to discuss this opportunity please contact Maria Pritchard on maria.pritchard@ucl.ac.uk We particularly welcome female applicants and those from an ethnic minority, as they are under-representation UCL at these levels. This is in line with section 48 of the Sex Discrimination Act and section 38 of the Relations Act.
/consultancy/ If you would like to discuss this opportunity please contact Maria Pritchard on maria.pritchard@ucl.ac.uk We particularly welcome female applicants and those from an ethnic minority, as they are under-represel within UCL at these levels. This is in line with section 48 of the Sex Discrimination Act and section 38 of the Relations Act.	go	o to within UCL at these levels. This is in line with section 48 of the Sex Discrimination Act and section 38 of the Relations Act.	/c If	consultancy/ you would like to discuss this opportunity please
Closing Date 4 Dec 2009	UCL at these levels. This is in line wi
 	g Date 4	Dec 2009
Latest time for the submission of 5pm applications	•	m
Interview date 16th December 2009	view date 16	th December 2009	1

JD and Person Spec

Welcome letter

HR OSD functional chart

3 of 3 10/12/2009 06:51